IV. COLLATERALS AMONG CONSANGUINEOUS KIN

A. THE PARENTS' COLLATERALS

1. Father's Brother

The usage with regard to the names of the FBr's resembles that for the F, and is a suitable illustration of the principle of the extension of kinship attitudes. The pers/n of a paternal uncle is avoided, whether he be the elder or younger brother of the F.

An alternative in address is the classificatory k/t Baba (G, DV, S) alone and in reference with the descriptive adjectives omkhulu or omncane (FeBr, FyoBr) respectively. S notes the 2nd and 3rd person forms uYihlo and uYise and even Babekazi. Clan/n, court/n and regim/n are not used by BrSo or BrDa in addressing the FBr. However, they do not avoid the root of the FBr's pers/n.

The FBrWi is addressed by Ego as Mame, whether she is the senior or junior Brother's Wi. Descriptive terms, viz., Mame-omkhulu for FeBrWi and Mame-omncane for FyoBroWi are used in reference. Their clan/ns or court/ns may be used in the appropriate combinations.

2. Father's Sister

The FSi's pers/n is avoided by Ego. The reason appears in the substitute name, the k/t Baba! To identify her the expression uDade-ka-Baba may be employed. The term uBabekazi recorded by G, DV and S was rejected by the Eshowe Four who wish to reserve it for FBr. When told that the suffix -kazi implies a female they accept this and argue that in this combination it means relationship in general. (Bryant: 1905 gives three meanings of Babekazi: FBr, FSi and F's cross-cousin).

According to S: 567 the 2nd and 3rd person forms uYihlo and uYise are used for your/his FSi, even uYihlokazi and uYisekazi. A special k/t for FSi is umNtwana-omkhulu.

The pers/n of a FSiH is avoided by Ego. He is addressed and referred to as Baba or mKhwenyane (G, vW), the classificatory k/t for many in-laws. The second term is used more frequently and with the intention of honouring him. His Gr/ns may be used if the speaker is of about the same age.

3. Mother's Brother

The pers/n of a MBr is avoided by his SiChn, whether he is older or younger than his Si. The root is never avoided. He is addressed by the k/t which is also used in reference, viz., uMalume (lit. male mother) (G, DV, S). The term may be shouted across the homestead by the Chn. Clan/n, court/n and regim/n cannot be used by them. A SiCh would not be beaten for breaking this rule, nor fined, but scolded. Normally no distinction is made between elder and younger MBr but if necessary Malume-omkhulu and Malume-omncane are used. S, DV note uNyokolume and uNinalume for MBr in the 2nd and 3rd person respectively.

There is no formal teasing or joking between a Zulu MBr and his SiChn, but a maternal uncle is the friendliest of the parental collaterals. He may play with a SiCh and come down to its level. When he goes to visit at his Br-in-l's home, he says: "I am going to see my SiChn." The Chn in turn are fond of their MBr; they prefer to visit at his place rather than at their FBr's, or at the home of FSi and MSi.

The MBrWi is also referred to as uMalume (G). The extension of the term from H to Wi cannot indicate identity of function: it is a polite extension. To avoid confusion it may become necessary to refer to her as uMka-Malume (= wife of male mother) or uMalumekazi (vW).

4. Mother's Sister

A MSi's pers/n is avoided by her SiChn. A Ch addresses a MSi, whether she is older or younger than its M, as Makazi or Mame (S, vW). The k/t is also used in reference (with the uprefix), before and after her marriage. S: 567 notes the 2nd and 3rd person forms: Nyokokazi 54 and Ninakazi.
